George Shafer Found

George (Orator) Shafer, one of our most difficult missing players has been found by Richard Malatzky. His brother, Taylor, was found about a year ago, but it has been really tough to get a line on George. According to the Philadelphia city directories, George lived at 2043 Master with Taylor. The 1900 census shows George W. Shafer, born October of 1851, living with his wife Ada and daughter Regina. In the 1908 city directory, Ada is listed as a widow, but George isn't dead. He pops up in the 1910 census. This has happened before with players such as Seymour Studley. Apparently not wanting the stigma of a marital separation, the wife lists her husband as dead.

George is listed in the city directory through 1921. Richard made a trip to Philadelphia and looked for a will. He was able to find one and it showed that Shafer stopped orating on January 21, 1922. There was only a brief mention of his death in the Philadelphia newspapers. This isn't unusual, but disappointing for a 13 year major league veteran. Since Shafer was probably our most prolific missing player, he is the Find of the Month.

The Boomer That Came Sooner

We are all familiar with former Boston and Milwaukee first baseman George (The Boomer) Scott. However, the original George Scott pitched for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1920 and has been missing for years. Jack Smalling managed to finally locate his death December 3, 1962 in Philomath, Oregon. The birthdate matches the 11/17/1896 birthdate we have. The funeral home lists his place of birth as Appanoose County, Iowa, a county in southern Iowa just a few miles from Trenton, Missouri, the town listed as Scott's birthplace. I found an obituary of Scott that told absolutely nothing about him.

Bill Haber researched many Scotts over the years and I checked back through Bill's old notes. Scott pitched for several years in Texas and was supposedly living down there. In Bill's notes was a George Scott that had his will probated in Houston. He died in December, 1962 in a place other than Texas. Obviously, this is that George Scott. Although we can't be 100% certain, we have a George William Scott, born on exactly the right day, in a place very close to the right birthplace, and he had come from Texas, where the ballplayer was known to have lived. That seems like enough circumstantial evidence to list this man as our missing player. A fine job by Jack to track him down.

Albert Sauter

While Richard was in Philadelphia, he wasn't content just finding one missing player. He decided to track down Albert Sauter as well. Sauter put an ad in The Sporting News in 1891 trying to get a job. He listed his address as 2713 Girard in Philadelphia. In 1898, he had organized an amateur team in Philadelphia and still listed his address as 2713 Girard.

Richard found his will that listed 3 homes that he owned. One was at 2713 Girard and one was in Ocean City, New Jersey where he died on July 15, 1928. Again, there was no mention of baseball in his brief obituary in the Philadelphia newspaper. Interestingly enough, on February 10, 1916, Philadelphia held its annual sports writers dinner. Former players listed as attending included Harry Mace, Albert Sauter, George Shafer, and William Wolff. Mace and Wolff are still missing.

Just a Schmidtgen Off

We had listed F. William Smith as a pitcher for Detroit in 1886. Richard Malatzky determined that this man's name was actually Schmidt. Once he found that, he was able to locate him in the New Orleans city directories. He was able to locate a relative who could provide the death date. Then Peter Morris obtained his obituary from the New Orleans Times-Picayune. It was a lengthy obituary that stated he had indeed played for the Tigers in 1886 and in later years, Ty Cobb looked him up in New Orleans and they became friends. It's always nice to get rid of a player named Smith.

New Members

Please welcome Kevin Cluff to the committee. Kevin's address is 15821 Hyland Pointe Ct, Apple Valley MN 55124. Kevin's code number will be C4. Also welcome Derek Adair, 5413 Village Park Dr. SE #2813, Bellevue WA 98006. Derek's code number will be A4.

The Rookie List

Accompanying this report is the list of 2002 rookies. There were a total of 204 rookies and 2 non-playing managers, Grady Little and Carlos Tosca. There was one new country represented as Chin Feng-Chen became the first major leaguer born in Taiwan. The youngest rookie was Francisco Rodriguez, 20, who was the only major leaguer born in 1982. The oldest rookie was Satoru Komiyama, who was 36. Maybe they'll make a movie about him. The tallest rookie was Jon Rauch at 6-10 and the shortest was Takahito Nomura at 5-07. The heaviest was a tie between Ryan Bukvich and J. J. Davis at 250. (By the way, J. J. Davis's name is Jerry C. Davis. I guess he didn't like his middle initial.) Three players weighed only 150 pounds: Victor Alvarez, Omar Infante, and Ramon Santiago.

There were only a few relatives involved. Sean Burroughs is the son of Jeff Burroughs, Cody McKay is the son of Dave McKay, Dustin Wathan is the son of John Wathan, and Jayson Werth is the son of Dennis Werth and the grandson of Dick Schofield. There were also two rather interesting debuts. Miguel Asencio walked the first 4 batters he faced, economizing his pitches. He needed only 16 pitches to walk 4 men. Then there was Ron Wright, who had 3 at bats and accounted for 6 glorious outs. He hit into a triple play, a double play, and struck out in his 3 plate appearances. Finally, there is my favorite name among the rookies. It has to be Covelli Loyce (Coco) Crisp. Look for him to have his picture on a cereal box.

Birth of the Babe

According to Marshall Smelser's book on Babe Ruth, Babe originally thought his birth date was February 7, 1894. When he went on a tour of Japan, he needed a passport and his sister found from the Baltimore birth records that he was born February 6, 1895. It was nice of Mamie Ruth to do our work for us.

Birthday List

It's been a tough year for the guy who holds the title of "oldest living former major leaguer." We began the year with Karl Swanson holding that title. When he died, Ralph Erickson became the oldest at 99 years, 9 months, 9 days old. Two days after he turned 100, Erickson died and Ray Hayworth took his place. Hayworth died September 25, the 98th birthday of the man who took his place, Paul Hopkins. Erickson and Hayworth had the two shortest reigns of any players who were the oldest living player. The following players are celebrating birthdays in November and December. Make sure to send a card.

November 8	John Stoneham	94
November 17	Rolland Stiles	96
November 24	Billy Rogell	98
	Angelo Giuliani	90
November 29	Harry Boyles	91
December 3	Charlie Wagner	90
December 10	Floyd Giebell	93
December 11	George Coffman	92
December 16	Emil Mailho	93
December 21	Anthony Bongiovanni	91
December 23	Solomon Carter	94
December 25	Alta Cohen	94

Did East Go West?

Harry East played one game for Baltimore in 1882. He is shown in the 1900 Missouri census living in St. Louis with his widowed mother, Ada V. East. Harry was single and a physician. Supposedly, Harry moved to Los Angeles and was living there in 1930. However, he isn't in the 1920 California census and he doesn't appear in the California death index. So the question is: which direction to we have to go to find our Mystery of the Month?
