Not everything that counts can be counted; not everything that is counted is worth counting.

Newly-discovered Batting Streaks

This remarkable discovery from the nineteenth century is from Frank Williams. Frank found 19 of these consecutive-game batting streaks while going over selected ICI sheets. The other two, those of Cal McVey and Dick Higham, were deduced from John Tattersall's collection of 1876 box scores.

Frank says that these 21 streaks have never before appeared in any record book or encyclopedia. He also wants to emphasize that his research was selective as to both years and teams. He concentrated primarily, though not exclusively, on Boston teams and the post-1889 National League. Therefore, he feels that there are other nineteenth-century hitting streaks still to be discovered.

It was during Cal McVey's streak, says Frank, that he became the only player to have six hits in each of two consecutive games (July 22 and July 25). McVey went six-for-seven in each of those games.

Running on empty

That is the title Bob Davids gives to his list of Players Who Hit a Triple and Then Stole Home. I wonder if any of them did it on consecutive pitches.

Pitchers who completed what they started

This list, submitted by John O'Malley, is not likely to grow. It contains those pitchers who started at least 250 games and completed at least 90% of them. Each one began his career in the 19th century. John used the 4th edition of Total Baseball as his source.

Most home runs by batter off pitcher (season)

On this list submitted by Dave Vincent, three batters (George Kelly in 1923, Ted Kluszewski in 1954, and Ted Williams in 1941) hit six home runs off one pitcher in a single season. The others all had five.

Pitchers' Games Started by the 1934 NY Giants

The Giants played 153 games in 1934 and if you add up the pitcher's Games Started shown in Total Baseball, The Baseball Encyclopedia, and The Sports Encyclopedia—Baseball for each of their pitchers it does total 153. Furthermore, all three books agree on the disposition of those starts, one of which is credited to Clyde Castleman. Bill Deane, in response to a request for the date of that one start, reported it as July 5. But Dick Thompson said that according to his records it was Hal Schumacher, and not Castleman, who started that July 5 game against Brooklyn. Bill went back to the official sheets at Cooperstown, and found that Schumacher did indeed start the game and Castleman's appearance was in relief. He also checked Castleman's six other 1934 appearances and found that they too were in relief. Castleman made no starts in 1934. So subtracting Castleman's start, the Games Started by Giant pitchers in 1934 now added to 152—one short of their total games played.

I asked Walt Wilson to check into this discrepancy. Walt, who has corrected many previous errors in Games Started totals, found that along with the error in Castleman's record there are also errors in the Games Started totals for three other Giants pitchers: Carl Hubbell (should have 35, not 34), Roy Parmelee (should have 21, not 20) and Al Smith (should have 4, not 5).

At the same time, Bill made his own check from the day-by-day sheets and found the same results as Walt. Bill points out that the sheets did not have a separate column for Games Started at that time. The only way to determine who started a game and who relieved was to look at the "comments" section at the far right of each entry. For instance, on that July 5 game Bill says the comment sheet for Castleman should say "relieved Schumacher and was relieved by Bell," but the first part is omitted. These comments were sometimes sloppily written and are often difficult to read on scratched microfilm, so it's not surprising that there are errors made in reading these sheets. No doubt more such errors are out there waiting to be discovered.

Here then is a con	ected list of pitchers'
starts for the 1934	Giants.
Fred Fitzsimmons	37
Hal Schumacher	36
Carl Hubbell	35
Roy Parmelee	21
Joe Bowman	10
Jack Saiveson	4
Al Smith	4
Watty Clark	4
Hi Bell	2

- Walt says that the Total Games and Complete Games for all 1934 Giants pitchers are correct as shown in the three encyclopedias.
- 2. Bill says that Parmelee had two shutouts in 1934, not three. The latest editions of Total Baseball and The Sports Encyclopedia—Baseball have this, but The Baseball Encyclopedia shows Parmelee with three shutouts. The mistakenly credited shutout was the April 19 game against Brooklyn, in which he was relieved by Dolf Luque after 7 1/3 innings.

Civdell Castleman

3. The additional start by Hubbell increases his lifetime total to 432, which ties him with Billy Pierce for 70th on the all-time list. Obviously, given the above, this list is not cast in stone.
